That moving pictures can be classed as one of the greatest inventions of modern times has been apparent for some time. A picture being run at the Theatorium today shows one of the very interesting things that can be accomplished with motion pictures. This picture shows us the wonders of Yellowstone Park, justly termed "The Wonderland of America." The motion views of the geysers and other points of interest are truly remarkable. The great wonder is, that this subject was not thought of and placed before the public at an earlier date, if such subjects are to be had readily, the success of moving pictures is assured for a long time to come.
